

WAR TAX MEASURE PASSES 34 TO 22

COTTON RELIEF AMENDMENT
CARRYING $250,000,000 DE-FEATED 40 TO 21.

DEBATE ALMOST BLOCKS BILL

Measure is Designed to Raise $100,000,000 Additional Revenue to Meet Emergency Caused by European War.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The administration war revenue bill, carrying approximately $100,000,000 additional taxes to meet the emergency caused by the war in Europe, was passed by the senate, 34 to 22, after Southern Democrats in coalition with Republicans of the senate desperately fought to postpone indefinitely consideration of the measure because cotton relief legislation had been decisively defeated.

To Senator Stone of Missouri and Senator Williams of Mississippi was given the chief credit for blocking the effort of the little coterie of Southern Democrats who tried to kill the tax bill. Senator Stone denounced the opposition as "recalcitrants," said he used the term deliberately, and scored them for attempting to repudiate a measure they were pledged to support.

"The Democrats of this senate and of the house would be recreant to their duty," said Senator Stone. "If we adopted the motion to postpone action on this bill indefinitely and adjourn and go home whipped by a small contingent of recalcitrants, and leave the government stranded, and thereby hold the democratic party up to contumely and contempt."

John Wanamaker's Talk on Business Conditions.

Depression, Where It Exists, Can Be Only Temporary—Spirit of Optimism Is the Message That Should Be Spread.

John Wanamaker talked at a gathering of business men in Philadelphia the other day, and his speech indicated that he can shut his eyes to present discouragements and see in the not distant future a vision of returning good times.

He concedes the sympathetic effect of the situation in New York so long as the stock exchange remains closed. The interests of the metropolis, he recognizes, are so wrapped up in financial ownership of railroads, stocks and bonds and financial things generally that the depression has spread as a great pall over the greater part of that city. But New York, though a great factor in the business world, is only one factor. Mr. Wanamaker proceeds:

"My great hope—indeed, I may say, my firm belief—today is that this condition is only temporary. We can shorten it, and it is our duty not to talk down, but to talk up. We must first get ourselves in an optimistic frame of mind, for the man who is discouraged can discourage the man who is next to him. If a man has health and strength he has no right going about with a long face; he only makes things harder for himself and for those about him. We have gone through a hard time, but conditions that exist here are not simply the result of politics or of war in Europe. The tariff has had a great deal to do with the unrest, the closing of mills because capital cannot be had as usual. As for the income tax, it is good, sound sense to make the rich men bring out their money, but it touches all such as ourselves, for there is just that much money less in circulation. Banks were not made to buy bonds and serve railroads. They were made to serve the people—to help those who make it possible for people to pay rent, the grocer and the doctor. Men who are doing business should have the very first consideration from the banks. Whatever comes, there will always be business to do, and the man who works will get it."

This manly and cheerful talk, breathing the spirit of optimism, contains a message for business men at large. They will do well to read it, for there are times when brave, bright words suffice to drive away gloom. To a certain extent as President Wilson implied—a business situation is psychological. As Hamlet declared, "There's nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so." It is very foolish to make business worse than it is by thinking it so. Comparing their lot with that of others, the people of the United States have ample reason to rejoice, and to believe that the outlook for business is as good as John Wanamaker's says it is.

True Political Situation.
The constructive policies of President Wilson are certain to remain in force until the expiration of his term, and by that time their wisdom will be so apparent to the country the people would not consider their abandonment. Plainly then, considering worldwide conditions, it is best for the country from any point of view to return a friendly congress. There are extremely delicate situations ahead for President Wilson to handle, situations that may profoundly affect the future of the country. The people without regard to partisan affiliations, know that he is a man of surpassing prudence and caution and that the affairs of the country are in safe hands. He is a wonderful executive and is fully competent to discharge the great responsibilities resting upon him.

Question for Republicans.
Republicans in congress who attribute our national financial troubles not to the war, which has put a check upon imports, but to Democratic tariff revision downward, fail to note one fact of importance. If we had been depending altogether upon a Dingley or a Payne-Aldrich tariff this summer and fall, the treasury deficit would have been about twice as large. What would they have done in that case?—New York World.

Would Be Public Disaster.
If the people calmly consider the achievements of President Wilson and congress they will not risk the welfare of the country by returning to congress a Republican majority. Such a blunder on their part would constitute a public disaster. There are clear skies ahead and the people must trust the wise and patient pilot who is taking them through the storm.

Law's Results Yet to Be Seen.
European conditions have made it impossible for the true value of the tariff act to be demonstrated. More than that the more intelligent people consider the subject the more they are bound to see that it would be folly to undertake to amend the law before its virtues are manifested. It would be impossible for a Republican congress to upset the administration's tariff policy and there is nothing to be gained by giving the president a hostile congress in times like these.

Seeking Information.

Bob Burman, record holder in motor car racing, tells the following story: Recently I was talking with a woman whose husband has acquired considerable wealth suddenly, and who was quite new to the social world and its customs. She was particularly anxious to appear as if accustomed to all the luxuries of life.

"Have you purchased your new car this season?" I asked.

"No, Mr. Burman, not yet," she said. "I can't make up my mind just which make of car to buy. Maybe you will help me."

"What is it that you cannot decide about them?" I asked.

"Why, I can't decide whether I should get a gasoline or a limousine car. Tell me, does limousine smell as bad as gasoline?"—Everybody's Magazine.

The Only Trouble With It.

The glancing amateur aviator was surveying the aeroplane in which he had intended to take a ride.

"Where?" exclaimed an admiring friend who had just dropped in at the hangar. "That's a peach of a machine. There's no flies on that aeroplane!"

"Nope," was the answer. "That's what's the matter with it."

HEAD IN WATERY PIMPLES

R. R. No. 1, Kyle, Ohio.—My baby's head when about a year old began to break out with small watery pimples causing her head to itch. She would scratch her head till the blood came causing the top of her head to be in almost a solid eruption. The pimples at first were nearly as large as a pea and in patches which would inflame and fester and when they would come open would leave a kind of wet scales there for a few days. Then when it dried up it would leave scales on her head that caused her hair to fall out just in great bunches.

"One day I happened to see Cuticura Soap and also Cuticura Ointment advertised in a paper and I ordered a sample of each. They seemed to help her head so much that I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks' time her head was sound and well. Her hair had stopped falling out and was also free from dandruff." (Signed) Mrs. J. L. West, Feb. 20, '14.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

MAKE IT A NATIONAL EVENT

Educational Movement Against Tuberculosis During the Week of November 29 Arranged For.

By sermons, lectures, motion pictures, exhibits and many other methods, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis will enlist thousands of churches, schools and lodges of the country in a simultaneous educational movement against tuberculosis during the week of November 29. The campaign is to be known as the Fifth Annual Tuberculosis Day Movement.

A special circular entitled: "What is Tuberculosis Day?" has been prepared and is being widely distributed. The plan of Tuberculosis Day, as explained in the circular, does not necessarily comprehend a special sermon on tuberculosis on November 29. If a church, school or lodge gives the subject attention in any way during that week, this will help in the national educational movement.

Outlines for lectures or sermons on tuberculosis and "stock" talks on the subject will be furnished free to ministers and others who can use them. Literature for distribution in the churches, schools, lodges, and elsewhere will also be given away in large quantities. Persons wishing such literature, either for the preparation of sermons or talks on tuberculosis, or for distribution in public meetings on Tuberculosis Day, should get in touch with their local anti-tuberculosis society, or if that is not possible, with the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 165 East Twenty-second street, New York city.

Cause for Doubt.

James A. Patten, the noted wheat operator, said to a reporter in New York:

"Edward Bok and other dress psychologists declare that this war is going to transfer the fountainhead of women's fashions from France to the United States. Well, on the Finland, on the way back home from the war zone, I noticed a thing or two that made me have my doubts."

"For example, I was describing to a group of women on the promenade one afternoon the way the Belgians had ruined a road into Liege—a road that blew up afterwards and killed 5,000 Germans. The women all seemed interested in my description and when I finished it I said:

"And now are there any questions any of you women would like to ask?"

A pretty and well-dressed Baltimore woman said anxiously:

"Can you tell us, Mr. Patten, if Paris had got all her fall fashions out before the war came on?"

Talleyrand's Victory.

One hundred years ago the congress of Vienna met for formal organization. Nearly all the monarchs of Europe were assembled to take part in the deliberations, or were represented by their most eminent statesmen. The Porte alone was not represented in this great congress of the nations. It is said that the four great allied powers—England, Austria, Prussia and Russia—had made a secret agreement to exclude France from participation in any of their territorial arrangements. But in this they reckoned without Talleyrand, the great French statesman and diplomatist, who not only insisted that his country be admitted to take part in all the deliberations, but himself became the leading spirit of the whole congress.

Way the Dance Changes.

The ailment that brought the waltz and the two-step to their lingering death was monotony. Each had one step, one tempo, and that is not enough. So the dances shivered up and died from lack of exercise. A few years ago the world entered upon one of its periodic rebellions against artificial conventions, and the people returned to the world-old, semi-forgotten recreation, dancing. The revival of dancing was accompanied by a clamor for variety.—Woman's Home Companion.

"But look here, Pat," said the latter, "you must see that the earth can't be anything else but round. Now, tell me, where does the sun rise?"

"In the east, of course," said Pat.

"And where does it set?"

"Why, in the west."

"Well, then, how does it manage to get back in the east again by the morning? Tell me that?"

Pat thought hard for a minute. Then an intelligent look dawned in his eye. "Why, of course," said he, at last, "it just slips back at night."—Cleveland Leader.

Condensed Language.
"Samoa has an ideal language, and there it was I got my inspiration," says Gelett Burgess in "Burgess Unabridged." "Can't we make English as subtle as Samoa? I wondered. There they have a single word, meaning 'A party-is-approaching-which-contains-neither-a-clever-manner-nor-a-pretty-woman.' Another beautiful word describes 'A man-who-climbs-out-on-the-limbs-of-his-own-breadfruit-tree-to-steal-the-breadfruit-of-his-neighbor.' 'Sulla' means 'Change-the-subject-you-are-on-dangerous-ground.' Another happy word expresses a familiar situation—'To-look-on-owl-eyed-while-others-are-getting-gifts.' Have we anything in English as charmingly tactful as this? No, our tongue is almost as crude as piglin-English itself, where plane is 'Hox-you-fight-him-ery.'"

Real Strategy.
The fat plumber and the thin carpenter were discussing the European war.

"I'd like to be in the English navy," said the plumber.

"I'd take the Belgian navy for mine," the carpenter remarked.

"Pooh," ejaculated the plumber, "Belgium has the smallest navy in the world."

"That's why I'd like to be in it," grinned the carpenter. "The smaller the navy the harder it would be to hit."—Youngstown Telegram.
